10.30 – 11.30 1st session. Prepared for Exams or Prepared for Life?

This is the teacher's dilemma when teaching what we call Exam classes. Is our main aim to ensure that students are prepared as well as possible in order to pass the exam or do we put exam preparation aside and focus on language skills development, communication and cultivating a joy in learning English?

Exam skills are, of course, also important. These include deciphering rubric, allotting sufficient time for different parts of a question, ensuring marks are not unnecessarily lost. This session will look at strategies that combine age appropriate topics and tasks for younger learners (10-17), focusing on what is interesting, relevant and useful for them as well as building skills that will help them approach examinations. Let's flip the perspective and consider how fun activities such as games, drama, projects etc. can be considered as valuable exam preparation.

Olha Madylus, Cambridge University Press author and teacher trainer

11.30 – 12.10 Кава-брейк

12.10 – 13.10 2nd session. Tackling Use of English: Developing the Skills to Succeed.

Use of English is typically the most difficult and confusing section for students. It is also a difficult section to teach, as it requires knowledge of phrasal verbs, dependent prepositions, fixed expressions, and other complex grammar topics. However, there are several strategies teachers can use to help their students succeed— and even have fun in the process. This presentation aims to present teachers with a variety of strategies, resources, and activities to help their students cope with Use of English.
